THIRD DAY OF THE BIG RACE.

Several Payorites for First and Second Places, but the Winner is in Bonbt. Last night saw a slight improvement in the Madison Square Garden, but paying rock has not been struck by any means. The manage-ment are hopeful that the last three days will draw the crowds. It was expected that in view of the disappointing returns the admission price would be lowered to 50 cents, but the management refuses to cut rates.

The afternoon crowd looked lost in the big building. In the evening a number of stu-dents from the College of the City of New York enlivened things considerably. Friday and Saturday will be "wheel nights." when the leading bicycling clubs will attend in bodies.

The venture merits better support. For three days Ashinger, Martin, Lumsden, Lamb. and Reading have been riding within a few feet of each other, not one daring to leave his wheel during the twelve hours. School has also been riding within a few laps of the leaders. Yesterday afternoon Lamb broke the pedal of his machine and while changing it the others wildly spurted, gaining a lap on the erratic Englishman. This may mean the loss of the race, and his handlers kicked long and of the race, and his handlers kicked long and strong to have the lap credited to him, advancing as a precedent the referee's decision when Lumsden, iteading, and Stage fell on Monday. But the referee decided that Lamb's mishap was not in the natureof an accident prescribed by the rules. Lamb while whirling around helped his trainers in their kicking. "Give me the lap, ye sods," he cried. "You'd do it quick enough if I wasn't an Englishman." He kept up his plaint all day, varying it with sudden wild spurts to regain the cherished lap. He would gain as much as half a lap, but could never get any further.

At 2.55 o'closk Schock's pneumatic tire burst with a report heard all over the building, and the machine wabbled about the track. The Chicago representative lost two precious laps while a new wheel was procured for him. The tire was repaired and filled with air, but again burst before Schock got a chance to mount it.

Schock, with his lumbering style of propelling, has unceasingly made the pace slace sgain burst before Schock got a chance to mount it.

Schock, with his lumbering style of propelling, has unceasingly made the pace since Monday afternoon. He has not the speed of the others, and his only hope is to lead such a merry chase that the others will be weary men at the end of the wook, when he expects his powers of endurance and gameness to tell.

Ashinger has suddenly loomed up as a favorite for first money. The Okiahoma boomer is riding the easiest of the lot, and there is no question of his speed. Orrie Moore, the six-day pedestrian, has taken hold of him and speaks favorably of his chances. It is strange, but Martin is seldom mentioned as the winner. The champion keeps up with the procession all right, and is riding strong, but somehow the talent have little faith in him to carry off the present race. Albert, the ex-amateur runner, is handling him.

ing strong, but somehow the talent have little faith in him to carry off the present race. Albert, the ex-amateur runner, is handling him.

A favorite with the crowd is Reading, the sturdy, handsome, black-moustached soldier from Omaha. Reading is credited with having the most speed of the party, having defeated nearly all his associates in previous races. Reading has lost two laps by changing machines, but has not shown whether he has his old speed by attempting to regain the lost ground. His trainer says there will be plenty of time for that in the coming three days.

Lamb, the English stone mason, is second choice. It is a certainty that if he is anywhere near the front on Saturday night the spectators will be treated to some remarkable sprinting. He has shown that he retains the great sprinting powers that electrified the crowd at the last six-day contest.

Lumsden is keeping them guessing. Everybody concedes that if the homely Scotchman is in at the death he will make things hum in the final miles. But they are looking for him to drop by the wayside, although, in truth, he appears to be as fresh as the others.

There is serious trouble between Manager Eck and the riders. Big Dick Howell came very near handling Eck roughly early yesterday morning, but Press Agent Gottschalk interfered before any blows were struck. Howell says the Garden management has treated him fairly, and refuses to make any statement until Saturday night. Then he promises to divulge things that will make spley and interesting reading.

On his part Manager Eck is preparing a statement that will give his side of the case. In regard to the riders' charges he denies everything they say, and in return charges them with swinding him at every opportunity. He says he has supported O'Flanagan, Lamb, Howell, Alfred, Robb, Wood, and Stage since last October, and declares they are deeply in debt to him and are guilty of base ingratitude. When Eck's and the riders' statements are made public some interesting developments of six-day bleyele racing wi record.

The day's series of short-distance races resulted as follows: sulted as follows:

Beautiful Exhibitions of Horsemanship is Aid of Charity, Durland's Riding Academy presented a scene of brilliancy last night upon the occasion of the annual music ride in aid of the Ta Kala Fresh Air Fund. The programme consisted of a grand exhibition of riding, driving, and jumping. There was not a va-cant seat in the immense amphitheatre when the opening number began. At 8 sharp the doors leading to the stables were thrown open, and fully seventy-five ladies and gentlemen appeared, mounted upon fine saddle horses, and executed numerous pretty and intricate movements in twos, fours, and eights, under the command of Baron Paul Vietinghoff. The second number on the programme was hante école, performed by Mr. E. M. Little's beautiful horse Earl, ridden by Mr. C. L.

London, March 9.—The feature of the third round in the tournament of the British Chess Association was the victory of Lasker over Mason. Bird and Locock played a sprightly Giuoco Piano: the old man won after 50 moves, having the advantage throughout the game. Mortimer won a beautiful Evans Gambit, declined from Jasnogrodski. The game is appended. Rumboll scored his first victory by defeating Gossip in brilliant style in a French Defence. Lee played a Ruy Lopez against Loman. The Dutch champion was caught napping. He lost after 45 moves. Van Vliet and Fenton drew, the former, who opened with a Four Knights' game, threw away his advantage. Fenton played the latter part of the game remarkably well.

First Day of the Big Baltimore Touranment.

BALTIMORE, March 8.-The initial shoot at the Inter-State Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association opened to-day at Acton Park, the stamping ground of the Baltimore Gun Club. and was an immense success. The early hours of the day were rainy; but at noon the clouds cleared away, the sun came out bright and warm, and at least a thousand persons spent the afternoon on the grounds. The opening event had thirty-one entries, and this was the lowest number of the day. The grounds present a picturesque appearance with a semi-circle of tents behind the line of traps; and the Patapsco River in the foreground. The wind blew from the left quarter all the afternoon with just enough force to clear away the smoke without interfering with the flight of the targets. The new semi-professional rule which was tried to-day for the first time is very popular. The only experts present were Apgar of New York, Miller of Sprinfield. N. J., and Wolstencroft of Philadelphia. The latter is out of form, shooting far below his usual average. C. H. Breisford and J. M. Worden of Harrisburg are among the shooters who arrived to-day. Late in the afternoon Dr. Weyman of Staunton, Va., while shooting in the amateur class, had a narrow escape, the entire breech of his gun being blown off, owing to a flaw in the metal. The Doctor escaped without a scratch. H. A. BROOKLYN SHUT THEM OUT.

Brilliant Game by Ward's Men in Which The Opponents Patied to Secret.

Ocala, March 9.—The Srooklyns made a better showing here yesterday than even their warmest admirers among the citizens of this town had expected. The Tampa team has been reckoned among the strongest in the South this season. Their record up to yesterday was ien victories as against only one defeat. A. L. Lawson pitches good ball, but the boys found his curves in no time. At last account Joyce was still at Hot Springs, but Ward has wired him to come on immediately, as he will be an absolute accessity in the game with the Philadelphias. One of the boys here received a letter to-day from Hanlon, who hat Hot Springs, in which the latter configurity asserts that short-stop toreoran had left to join the team here. Orifin arrived here from Ulca to-day looking hale and hearty.

It was ideal baseball weather this afternoon when the Broaklyns and Tampas erossed buts at the Exposition grounds. The grand stand was one-third occupied, and the crowd on the field was of good size. About a dozen carriages and stages well filled were grouped back of the diamond, at least a third of those present being leides. The infield work to-day was very fine, especially in the fifth inning, when the Tampas had three men on bases and none out. A strike out, an assist from Ward to Broakler, and the crowd on the open carriages and the power of the core.

WILL LONG ISLAND WITHDRAWS

Prospect of the Inlanders Going It Alone Unloss the A. A. U. Makes a Change. The Long Island Amateur Athletic League received a setback at the meeting of the Central Board of the Amateur Athletic Union at the Astor House on Monday night, when at a very late hour the following resolution was passed by the Board: Resolved, That bereafter no association of the Ama-teur Athletic Union be allowed to recognise any league or association of clubs within its jurisdiction. The passage of this resolution was attended by a lengthy discussion, for the magnates of the Board easily saw that it meant a conflict with the great Long Island League, the sec-ond strongest athletic body in the country. "Why was it passed?" asked prominent Long ond strongest athletic body in the country.

"Why was it passed?" asked prominent Long Island athletes resterday. "Were the managers of the A. A. U. afraid of the league's growing power and strength?"
The upshot of the whole trouble may be that the Long Island athletes may conclude to go it alone, keeping out of the Manhattan-New Lork row, as they consider the Metropolitan Association, and using their efforts toward the perpetuation of local interests.
President Peverelly, when seen by a Sun reporter relative to the matter yesterday, said:
The whole trouble was brought like our provious misunderstanding with the Amateur Athletic Union, by the lack of knowledge of the case by the officers and members of that body. In the first place, several weeks ago President Curits made the suggestion that the Long Island district be made into a separate division, but we did not apply for that division, but we did not apply for that division, as President Howard Perry visited Gotham and proposed several amendments to the constitution of the union that would bring about the desired change. The clubs on Long Island are a unit on the subject of a separate division, as far as I can ascertain, as we have everything to lose by remaining in the Metropolitan Association, which is far too large as it stands at present, and nothing to gain. With our own laws and rules, subject to the Amateur Athletic Union, we can get many of the league organizations, which now refuse to join the Amateur Athletic Union, to become affiliated with the union, and thus strengthen the body athletic as well as the league.

"Secretary Sullivan sent out a circular."

get many of the league organizations, which now refuse to join the Amateur Athletic Union, to become affiliated with the union, and thus strengthen the body athletic as well as the league.

"Becretary Sullivan sent out a circular, while we had aiready issued one to the clubs asking their views on the subject, and in the absence of the replies from those clubs, many of which have held no meeting. I presume it was considered that they did not desire to become a separate division. The league, as usual, will take prompt action, and I have called a special meeting for Tuesday evening next at the Union Athletic Club rooms to consider the affair. Whether the league desires to go it alone remains for the delegates to decide. It is not improbable, as we have many members in the league who are not affiliated with the union, and the rowing clubs and cycling organizations, being members of the National Association of Amateur Carsmen and the League of American Wheelmen, may decide, as they have their own lews to stand by, to form an organization independent of the union. Personally I do not faver such a plan, as we have enough A. A. U. clubs in the league to get the separate division and may decide to adopt that plan at once.

President Mari A. Cuming of the Acorn Athletic Association said: "It was an unwise move of the A. A. U., for the Long Island League is very strong, and it has now given three championship meetings, quite successfully, as far as talent goes. The Acorns are in favor of a separate division, and will advocate such a change, for it's the only method by which we can got the recognition our strength warrants."

Troasurer Joseph C. Spaath of the Arcadia Athletic Association, relative to the subject, said: "Our organization isn't in it, as far as these squabbles are concerned, but when the affair takes on a local coloring I am afraid that the union will find it pretty hard to down the league, which sways a vast amount of local interest."

Troasurer Calvin D. Higgins of the Company D Athletic Club said: "We hav

When Billy Madden was asked yesterday what Peter Maher could mean by saving that he had been "duned. and not trained properly for his fight with Fitzsim-mons, Madden smiled sadly, and replied: "I don't know what Peter has been doing since he arrived in Philadelphia, but from this talk I think there must be something the matter with him.
